Celebrating 100 Years of Bavaria Film

When pictures learnt to move, Bavaria was there full of enthusiasm. The Bavaria Film Studios were founded in 1919, in Grünwald near Munich, in the Geiseltal district. Famous directors like Alfred Hitchcock, Billy Wilder, Orson Welles, John Huston, Ingmar Bergman, Stanley Kubrick, Claude Chabrol, Rainer Werner Fassbinder, Wolfgang Petersen, Tom Tykwer and Wim Wenders shot here with stars including Sophia Loren, Heinz Rühmann, Elizabeth Taylor, Gérard Depardieu and Bruno Ganz. Even Monty Python's Flying Circus touched down in the Bavarian Hollywood.

The Bavaria Film City is a must for film fans among many other Munich attractions. MICE experts, who want to offer their clients an event with high glamour factor, can have the VIP and Event Service of the Bavaria Film City arrange individual, custom tours and events like dinners on film sets, or film workshops as incentives.

Oktoberfest 2019

From September 21 to October 6, 2019, the largest public festival of the world will yet again be attracting loyal “Wiesn” fans from around the globe. As each year, the tension rises when everyone gathers to count how many knocks the mayor of Munich, Dieter Reiter, needs to tap the keg until he can finally declare: “Ozapft is!” The traditional tapping is set for Saturday morning in the Schottenhamel festival tent. Another highlight is the grand “Trachten- und Schützenfestzug” on the first Sunday, a procession featuring people in traditional attire making their way through Munich’s city center, all the way to Oktoberfest’s Theresienwiese.
