

Green Munich

Tips for a sustainable city trip

Discover Munich from its greenest side

Journey and mobility
Get there in a climate-friendly way

Enjoy green Munich
Sustainable activities

Gastronomy
From organic to vegan

Accommodation and souvenirs
Sleep well and buy good things

Arrival and departure

Clean travel to and from Munich

Arrive better

No traffic jams, no stress

Sustainable travel is one of those things: though we attach great importance to it, we often fail when faced with the reality since the environment-friendly alternatives are often too expensive, too time-consuming or too tedious. But in this respect, Munich makes life easy for travellers: the capital of Bavaria has excellent connections to other European metropolises and the attractive surrounding region can be reached quickly and conveniently thanks to numerous regional connections. Find out here how you can explore Munich in the best possible way – with no traffic jams or searches for parking spots. Have a good trip!

Planning a trip

Explore the city sustainably by public transport.

Website

Day trips by public transport

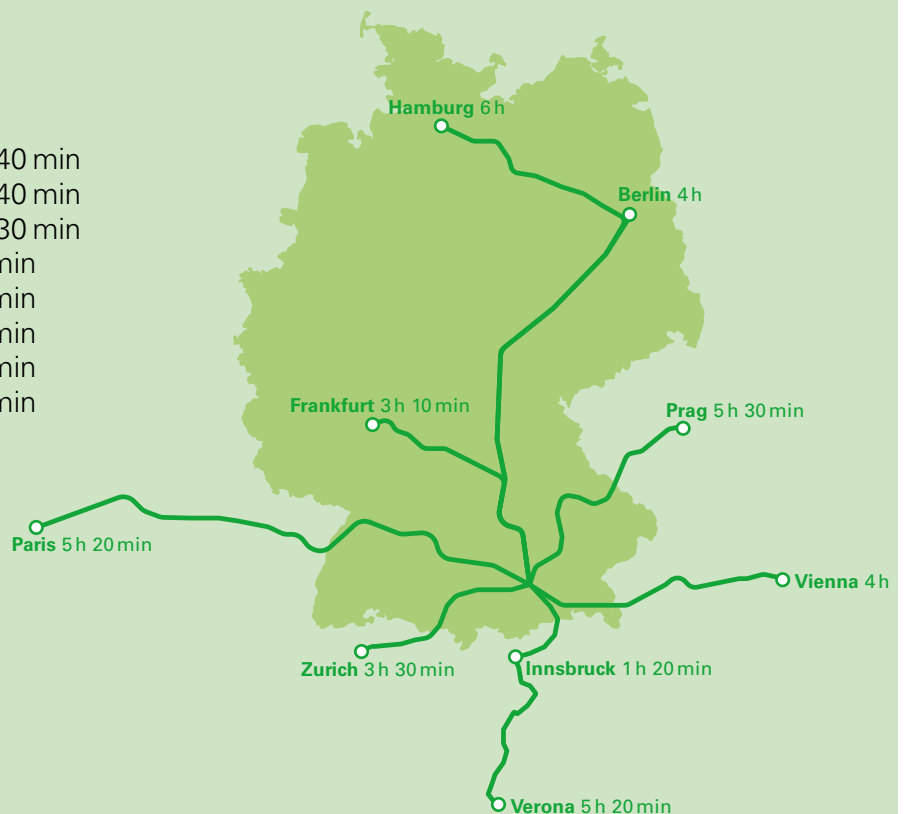

Oberammergau/Linderhof:	1 h 40 min
Neuschwanstein:	2 h 40 min
Berchtesgaden/Königssee:	2 h 30 min
Tegernsee:	65 min
Starnberger See:	20 min
Chiemsee/Herrenchiemsee:	60 min
Nuremberg:	60 min
Salzburg:	80 min

In a jiffy

Travelling green has never been faster:

Website

Mobility in Munich

The green city feeling

Did you know?

Flying from Berlin to Munich causes 143 kg of CO₂ emissions; by train it's only 21 kg.

Beautiful Munich becomes even more beautiful by bike

Next stop ...

... the Munich feeling

The question of how best to get to somewhere in Munich is not so easy to answer. Quickly hop on a suburban train (S-Bahn) or take a shortcut on foot through the English Garden? Travel quickly by underground or cycle along the River Isar? When it comes to mobility in Munich, residents are spoilt for choice in the best sense of the word. But one thing is certain: if you move around like the locals do, you'll immerse yourself in the city's way of life. Because that is shaped by a bike trip to the beer garden, an after-work trip to Lake Starnberg by suburban train or a night-time tram trip across the illuminated city. With this in mind, get in, get on and get around – and above all, dive in!

Cycling capital

You'll find bike tours for Munich and the surrounding area here:

Website

Munich's surroundings

Discover the most beautiful day trips for groups:

Website

Power carriage

Explore the city with an eFiker:

Website

Enjoy green Munich

Sustainable activities

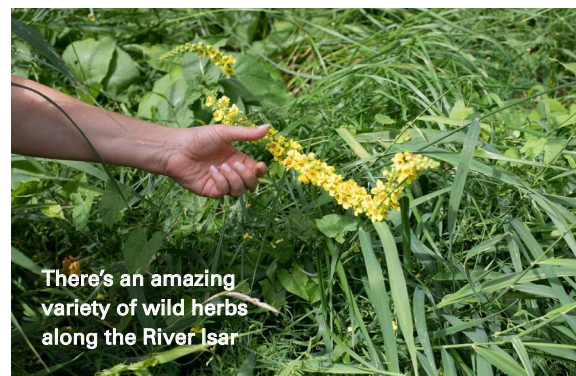

The English Garden is Germany's largest city park – and right at the heart of Munich!

Green soul

Munich from its liveliest side

The gigantic English Garden, world-famous Nymphenburg Palace Park, impressive Olympic Park, fairy-tale Isar meadows and countless beer gardens: at first glance, Munich seems incredibly green. And even if you look more closely, you'll see that sustainability and urbanity don't have to contradict each other. Discover Munich from its greenest side – figuratively and literally!

There's an amazing variety of wild herbs along the River Isar

Urban hikes

If you walk through Munich, you'll immediately notice two things: the city is so manageable you can actually explore large parts of it on foot; and most importantly, it is fabulously green. What awaits you in between? Magnificent boulevards, world-famous museums, lots of architecture and history. Explore Munich – from east to west and from north to south!

Website

Wild herbs hike

Are wild herbs only found in the wild? Certainly not! In a city like Munich, with its spacious green areas, there are numerous edible plants growing on your doorstep. You just have to know how to find them. On a guided wild herbs hike you'll get to know scratchberry, ground ivy and makesweet.

Website

The water at the city's fountains springs from Bavaria's Alpine foothills and is often drinkable.

Buy beautiful and do good – with sustainable fashion from Munich

You can go on a urban safari in Nymphenburg Palace park

Even more tips

You can find more suggestions for a sustainable stay here:

Website

Green fashion tour

From fair fashion and upcycling to innovative materials and cradle-to-cradle approaches: In Munich, there are so many designers, labels and stores specialising in sustainable fashion you could fill several days with touring them. Why not be inspired by a customised tour?

Website

Parks and gardens

Some superlatives are unavoidable when talking about the 2,300 hectares of Munich's green spaces. The English Garden at four square kilometres is even larger than New York's Central Park. The Nymphenburg Palace Park has been around since the 17th century. And the Botanical Gardens are home to 14,000 plant species. Let yourself be inspired by such green diversity!

Website

Gastronomy

From organic to vegan

Roecklplatz has a special restaurant concept

Different tastes better Tofu heaven and pub-food bliss

Only regional and organic ingredients, no dumping wages, vegetarian or just vegan dishes: if you visit one of the numerous sustainable restaurants in Munich, you'll be foregoing a lot – but not taste, quality or variety. Whether it's organic beer goulash at Klinglwirt, upscale green cuisine at Green Beetle or a vegan burger at Emmi's Kitchen, even convinced omnivores will be happy at any of these restaurants!

The menu at Roescklplatz is both refined and imaginative

Peak vegan

You'll find detailed information on vegan restaurants here:

Website

Most cafés have the RECUP deposit system for coffee beakers.

Restaurant tips:

- ◆ In addition to numerous vegetarian dishes, Klinglwirt also serves pub classics such as roast pork, gröstl (fried potatoes and meat) and sauerkraut with pork sausages – all of organic quality!

Website

- ◆ The Beetle serves regional and sustainable cuisine, with vegetarian and vegan dishes that leave nothing to be desired. Even the Michelin guide was impressed and awarded it a Green Star.

Website

- ◆ Socially disadvantaged young people are trained at the multiple award-winning Roecklplatz. One vocational training place always goes to a young refugee.

Website

- ◆ Prinz Myshkin is a pioneer of refined plant-based cuisine and has been conjuring up vegetarian delicacies since 1984.

Website

- ◆ Bellevue di Monaco, a cultural centre for refugees, offers a daily changing lunch menu. Sometimes Syrian, sometimes Senegalese, sometimes Ethiopian depending on who is in the kitchen at the time.

Website

- ◆ The two branches of Emmi's Kitchen solely serve vegan food – but you completely forget that when you try the sumptuous pancakes or burgers.

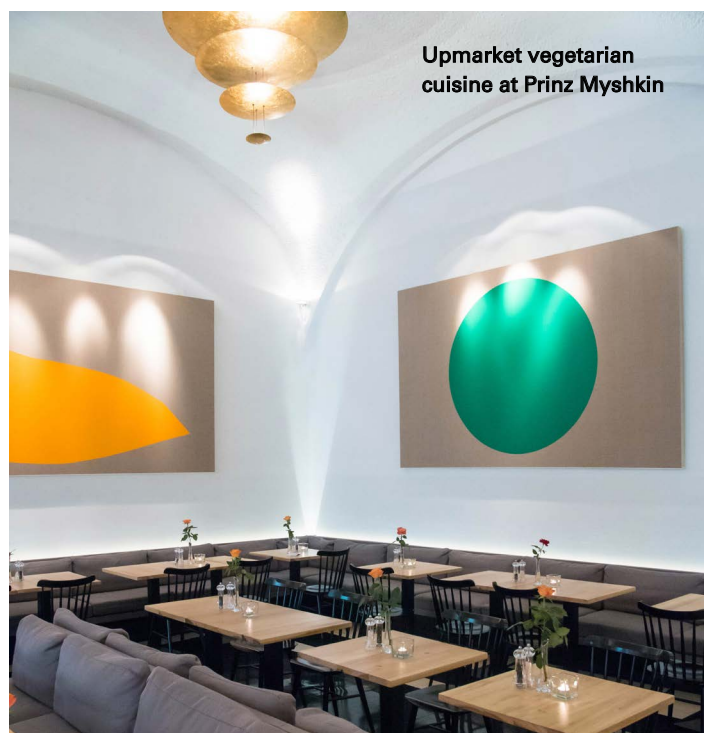

Website

- ◆ The organic beer garden at Muffatwerk serves classic beer garden dishes with Mediterranean influences as well as light vegetarian dishes.

Website

Mouth-watering:
the Pancakes at Emmi's Kitchen

Upmarket vegetarian
cuisine at Prinz Myshkin

Hotels

Sustainable concepts in practice

Impeccably green

Do good while asleep

What's the best way to sleep? With a clear conscience! And you can certainly have one if you spend the night in one of the Munich hotels that prioritise sustainability, regionality and naturalness. A recommended selection is listed below.

- ◆ At four locations in the centre of Munich Cocoon Hotels practise a convincingly sustainable concept and social commitment.

Website

- ◆ Great value is placed on traditional Bavarian character and regionality at the cute Marias Platzl in the Au.

Website

- ◆ With lots of natural wood and an innovative accommodation concept, Soulmade in Garching is home from home.

Website

- ◆ Scandinavian cosiness and a consistent sustainability approach make Scandic an exciting place to stay in the east of Munich.

Website

In a Cocoon Hotel you sleep in a resource-friendly way – and beautifully!

Accommodation

You can find many more Munich hotels here:

Website

Regional products

Good things to take home

Did you know?

You can observe many rare wild animals in Nymphenburg Palace park.

Julius Brantner's bread is a much sought-after delicacy in Munich

Less is more

Selected and sustainable

If a locally coloured keychain imported from the other side of the world doesn't add up to your idea of a perfect souvenir, you'll be delighted with these recommendations. After all, traditional craftsmanship is alive and well in Munich, offering products that are globally unique and sustainably sourced from regional roots.

The hand-made quality of Carolin Engelhardt's dirndls is very noticeable

Hardly any other city has such a long bread tradition as Munich. You'll find particularly prized baked goods at the Julius Brantner bakery.

Website

A genuine dirndl is probably one of the most beautiful souvenirs you can bring back from Munich. Designer Carolin Engelhardt creates exceptionally high-quality and beautiful ones.

Website

Acqua di Baviera perfumes are made exclusively in Bavaria and inspired by the world of regional scents.

Website

You'll find high-quality porcelain with a long tradition at Royal Porcelain Manufactory Nymphenburg. The „white gold“ has been manufactured there since 1747.

Website

www.simply-munich.com
#simplymunich

simply
MUNICH